Accounting for the trees

City doubles down on upping the green

Where have all the flowering trees gone? And why are they going? These and many other questions are being explored by city officials after many have said enough is enough.

By Jim Clark

City of Somerville officials have been feeling the heat over the past several months, and not strictly from the summer sun, unfortunately so for the many who are concerned with the issue of keeping enough healthy trees around.

In a flurry of arboreal zeal, the city's Board of Aldermen have bandied the issue about for some time now. From questions about why certain numbers of trees have been taken down, to proposals for regulating tree removal on private property, a lot of talk has been going down, with much more to come.

At the Board's latest regular meeting on September 13, no fewer than nine orders or resolutions directly relating to the the city's tree population were dealt with. Some of the agenda items addressed were:

An order that the Director of SPCD explain to the Board why not a single Continued on page 4

Lion's Head at the Homans Building removed

On Friday, September 14, as part of the Green Line Extension project's commitment to historical preservation, a mold was made of the Lion's Head at the Homans Building.

The Homans Building is scheduled to be demolished in the coming weeks. The building is very close to the future Green Line tracks, and land is needed for an electrical substation and other GLX-related infrastructure.

The goal was to remove the lion's head from the building in one piece, but the mold was created as a 'precautionary measure.'

The removed lion's head and mold will be given to the City of Somerville. This work is being monitored by the Somerville Historic Commission. A work plan was presented and approved at a Historic Commission meeting.

MBTA General Manager Luis Manuel Ramirez commented on the project, "From the very start of the Green Line Extension planning process, we have stressed the importance of working closely with the

This Sunday, September 30, 12:00 to 5:00 p.m., it's the very first "A Ball for Squares" block party in Ball Square. Join all the merchants of Ball Square in celebrating Somerville's bounciest square for a beer garden from The Pub, food from all of Ball Square's wonderful restaurants, crafts, activities, bands, and more. Sponsored by the Ball Square Business Association and Mayor Joe Curtatone. More information to come as time goes by. It's going to be a great day here in the square and city.

If you would like to subscribe to receive a digital edition of our paper, go directly online to our website - www.thesomervilletimes.com - over to the right side and fill out your email address to receive a free, full PDF copy of the paper. We attended the latest neighborhood meeting regarding the closing of the Ball Square Bridge, held at St. Clements Hall. About 75 residents and business people attended. Ward 5 Alderman Mark Niedergang spoke about the bridge closing and what keeps him up at nighttime regarding the various detours and how it's going to work out. He indicated he would be watching how the traffic flow was going to be and how much police presence is needed to help out. The spokesman from the T was very ineffective in explaining how the various routes would get around the closed bridge. One neighbor in the audience, former DPW commissioner under Mayor Ralph, Kevin Oliver, made some credible suggestions for the T and generally how the detours could work more effectively. The meetings will continue, but we noticed not a lot of business owners were present. One reason for that is people work hard and some get to work early in the morning, and when they close they run right home. A suggestion that maybe a direct meeting in the square with the various businesses might be a good idea, explaining how the traffic flow – or lack of it – is going to work. That's our suggestion, a general meeting during the day, convenient to the business, not City Hall or the Continued on page 11

Response to: The Somerville Museum 'Call for Community Curators'

Amazing place... says:

This is one amazing place. At least thats what I hear. I use a wheelchair so can never visit. My efforts to get through to museum people on this issue were never even acknowledged, never mind attended to. Yet another place I am not welcome. The list? Som.Rec, DPW, youth program/teen center/teen empowerment. Nave gallery, Kennedy Pool, Brown school, Trum field, I'm exhausted. irony? Special Olympics at Trum, inaccessible. But then, who cares?

Car 54 where are you? says:

I could have sworn we had a Disabilities Commission in the city. Where are they? They never weigh in on anything, including trees pulling up the sidewalks, no viable walking path when the Ball Square Bridge closes, etc., etc.

SamO says:

Amazing Place...If you're not a yuppie tech bro or a wannabe socialist, you're pretty much invisible in Somerville.

Left Behind says:

This is not a reflection on the work of Evelyn Battinelli, a lovely woman who has done an amazing job with the Museum and this is not something she is able to fix. It is amazing however, that in a city that worries about black lives, LGBTQ lives, provides tot lots for kids, festivals for hipsters, etc. it seems odd that the disabled community has been totally left behind. How much money has been spent on revamping playgrounds that were not that old? How many have accessible playground equipment included? I agree, where is the Disabilities Commission?

Its a reflection says:

Sorry, it's a reflection on anyone involved who has never cared. Theyve been given inormation over many years on grant funding, and groups willing to help. Also ideas on simple, FREE things they can do to make things a bit more open to us. Cue the crickets. I cringe when they talk about hearing our stories, when they exclude a large group. Imagine a sign saying; no minorities allowed. Same. Thing, but our lives just don't matter

Matt C says:

I'm pretty sure that the museum is not owned by the city, rather the city contributes to it through donations. If you want to see changes at the museum I think you should take it up with the museum leadership rather than the city. (based on what i can find on the museums website)

Courtney O'Keefe says:

At one point, a group (whose name escapes me) did push the lack of accessibility, but backed off for reasons that were never made public. Their intensity on ADA compliance issues at the Armory, public buildings/spaces and local businesses was well documented in the media, but the group seemed somewhat selective as to which locations they would focus on and how sharp that focus would be. For example, in 2017, B'Nai Brith received CPA funds to rectify their inaccessibility (https://goo.gl/GVY7NF). This was the first I had ever heard that the facility wasn't accessible and would have expected said group to highlight this and demand it be fixed. Maybe I missed it?

Do your research says:

To the rocket scientists above who couldn't be bothered to pick up a phone before whining: A: The Somerville Museum is not a city property and must rely on grants / memberships / donations / groveling for the pittance it has available to do what it does. The exhorbitant cost to install an elevator has rather surprisingly kept the project from happening. B: the museum finally got the money it needed to make the building accessible a couple years ago, but the project has been stalled because of a lawsuit from a neighbor who feels his/her desire to park on the museum's land "trumps" the project.

The new hipsters

We can rebuild him! When NASA astronaut Steve Austin is injured in the crash of an experimental aircraft, he is "rebuilt" in an operation that cost six million dollars. Hopefully, our co-payments for today's replacement surgeries won't ever be that high.

I'm going in next week for my second hip replacement. Oh boy! When I bump into a friend that's around my age, the subject of "replacement parts" always comes up. My body has been transformed into my old 1967 Dodge Dart. It would keep going as long as you slapped a new part in there every once in a while. As the car aged and the miles started to add up, a new water pump, generator, or starter had to be replaced every once

My friends have had shoulders, knees, and hips replaced. As we speak several of my friends are awaiting surgeries. When my old clunker of a car needed a part (we'd buy them new only if we had to) or better still, we'd go to Nissenbaum's Used Auto Parts On Columbia Avenue outside of Union Square.

Thankfully, for the most part when our bodies need new parts they are new in the box! Titanium all the way baby! So what if we set off metal detectors at the airport? We are hopefully pain free. By the way, that's the way it starts. Pain.

So my mind starts. How did I wreck my hips? Was it wear and tear, aging, or did I inherit arthritis? Probably a mixture. Just the same, I'd like to apologize to my body for some of the reckless activities I did that may have helped wreck my hips.

I'm sorry for: Hundreds of (yummy) trips back-and-forth from McKinnon's meat market lugging pork roasts, ground beef and one of Ross Blouin's famous humongous sub sandwiches. Eight years of walking back-and-forth from our house to Saint Clements carrying tons of heavy books. The sledding accident where I was actually airborne for about six seconds before slamming to the ground and being in pain for two weeks. The time I was playing Superman at a college fraternity party and jumped off the porch with a towel around my neck. My short lived skiing career. Several bicycle accidents. A summer of working on a farm moving piles of rocks around.

My four weeks on Emerson Colleges wrestling team. 6 years of religiously insane daily jogging. Dancing in several musicals (my unfortunate tap dancing accident). Walking a dog twice a day for 14 years.

And then there was the car accident at McGrath Highway and Pearl St. We were broadsided by a speeding car running a red light and ejected. Thankfully, we were in a 59 Ford which was built like an army tank. I can't forget the dozen or so times I jumped off stages during or after a crazy set with The Sleddogs, or The Tools bands (or with The Kiely Band at Northeastern Junior High School class day dance in 1977). I can honestly say I wouldn't have changed anything. Wear and tear, craziness, old age, it's all good.

It's great that they can rebuild us. I only wish they could replace other things I've worn out like my patience, parts of my brain, and no doubt, my welcome at times. Items that are unfortunately unavailable at Nissenbaums.

Unruly customer wears out his welcome

Police officers were dispatched to the Mt. Vernon restaurant on Broadway last week on reports of an intoxicated individual who was refusing to leave.

Upon arrival, the officers encountered the manager of the restaurant and its owner, along with the customer in question, later identified as John Delaney, of Charlestown.

According to reports, Delaney appeared to be agitated and was arguing with the restaurant management staff.

The manager reportedly told police that Delaney had been barred from the restaurant some time earlier. The officers were also told that Delaney had gone into the kitchen area, which is a restricted access area to employees only. Delaney then mock punched the manager in the gut, after which was told to leave the restaurant, but refused to do so.

As the officers attempted to speak with Delaney, he started pacing back and forth while yelling profanities at them and the restaurant personnel. He reportedly stated, "I don't like people who call the cops!"

The officers advised Delaney that he was causing a disturbance and that he should calm down. After a few minutes, the officers were able to calm Delaney's belligerent behavior. he reportedly told them that he was waiting for a friend to pick him up, then would be leaving.

After a short period of time, while waiting to see if Delaney would be picked up, the officers noted that the restaurant manager and owner came outside and exchanged words with Delaney.

The officers could not hear what was said, but it agitated Delaney and he began shouting and walking along the sidewalk.

The officers followed from a distance to ensure public safety due to Delaney's agitated state.

Delaney was yelling while walking in and out of the street. At the time, it was rush hour, and Broadway was busy with heavy traffic, along with heavy foot traffic on the sidewalk, according to reports.

Delaney suddenly stopped and turned around to face the officers. He reportedly punched his fist against his hands several times, then pointed at the officers.

The officers noted that a pedestrian scrambled to walk around Delaney as he flailed his arms in

The officers called for backup, then informed Delaney that he was under arrest and placed him into handcuffs. Due to Delaney's large physical stature, they had to use two sets of cuffs.

Delaney was subsequently transported back to the station for booking on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Replacement of street trees shall be additional to the standard provision of trees on the site in accordance with Section 10.3 of this Article.";

Along with special attention paid to the missing trees dilemma, many agenda items dealt with other environmental greenery issues as well.

While it is clear that the Board is taking steps to improve the regulations surrounding tree removal and replacement, some are concerned that actions speak louder than words, that more green needs to be seen, and that ultimately productive action needs to be taken.

In an effort to establish meaningful dialog between concerned residents and city officials, a public hearing on trees has been scheduled for Wednesday, October 3, at 6:00 p.m. in the Aldermanic Chambers, City Hall. The Open Space, Environment and Energy Committee will discuss and invite brief public testimony on the issue.

Everyone with concerns on the matter is invited to attend.

Our message continues on until there's zero

By Kristen Strezo Co-chair of the Somerville Commission for Women

The Somerville Commission for Women and RESPOND invite you to attend our annual Candlelight Vigil to commemorate Domestic Violence Awareness Month. Our vigil this year will be held on Wednesday, October 3, from 6:00 to 8:00 p.m. at Statue Park in Davis Square.

Our focus is threefold. First, we wish to recognize those whose lives were lost to Domestic Violence in Massachusetts over the past 12 months. We do this by reading their names and observing a moment of silence.

We also bring together local service providers in the community. We hope to be a bridge to any victim suffering in silence with a message that they are not alone and that support is eager to help.

Last, we wish to bring hope and healing. Every year we display the Clothesline Project; t-shirts designed by survivors and family members and friends of violence victims. The shirts line our vigil space and hold messages for the viewer: some anguished, some empowering, all thought provoking.

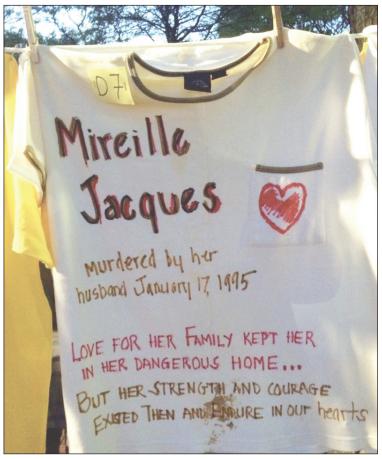

> We aim to be a mirror to our society...

And we want that. We aim to be a mirror to our society, a confirmation that no community goes untouched from domestic violence. Stern statistics affirm that you've known at least one person, perhaps a few, who have endured intimate partner violence. Jane Doe, Inc., states that one in four women and one in nine men were victims of domestic violence at some point in their lives.

It exists, too, in Somerville. While the number of those killed in Massachusetts due to domestic violence has decreased in the past few years, intimate partner violence is still happening.

I hope the numbers of deaths continue to decrease. I hope one day we never have to hold a vigil. Maybe one day. Until then, please join us at our vigil and help us strive to put an end to it.

Kristen Strezo is the Co-Chair of the City of Somerville's Commission for Women; however, the views and opinions expressed in this article are entirely her own and do not necessarily reflect the official policy or position of the City of Somerville.

This year's Candlelight Vigil to commemorate Domestic Violence Awareness Month will take place on Wednesday, October 3, at Statue Park in Davis Square, Somerville.

calls in the House or Senate last week.

This week, Beacon Hill Roll Call reports on the number of times each senator sided with Republican Gov. Charlie Baker on his 48 vetoes of items, mostly in the fiscal 2019 state budget, in the 2018 session.

A two-thirds vote is required to override a gubernatorial veto in a full 40-member Senate when there are no vacancies. The governor needed the support of 14 senators to sustain a veto if all 40 senators voted – and fewer votes if some members were absent or there were vacancies.

Baker fell far short of that goal as eight votes was the most support he received on any veto. The Senate easily overrode all 48 vetoes, including five that were overridden unanimously.

The vetoes had little support among Democrats in the Senate. Only one of the chamber's 31 Democrats voted with Baker to sustain any vetoes while the other 30 did not support the governor even once. The only Democratic senator who supported Baker was Sen. Sonia Chang-Diaz (D-Boston), who supported him 31 times (64.5 percent of the time).

"I voted against overriding vetoes in the budget that would have reinstituted earmarks, which I have a long-standing policy of opposing," Chang-Diaz told Beacon Hill Roll Call. "While some earmarks benefit wonderful organizations, overall I believe earmarking hurts our ability to plan long-term fiscal policy and undermines opportunities for fair, transparent, rigorous allocation of taxpayers' dollars. I find other ways to go to bat for great organizations and causes."

None of the Republicans voted with Baker 100 percent of the time.

The Republican senator who voted the greatest number of times with Baker was Sen. Vinny deMacedo (R-Plymouth): 23 times (47.9 percent of the time).

The GOP senator who voted with Baker the least number of times was Sen. Dean Tran (R-Leominster): 6 times (12.5 percent of the time).

PERCENTAGE OF TIMES LOCAL SENATORS SUPPORTED GOV. BAKER'S VETOES IN 2018 Here is how your senator fared in his or her support of Baker on the 48 vetoes.

The percentage next to the senator's name represents the percentage of times the senator supported Baker. The number in parentheses represents the actual number of times the senator supported Baker.

Some senators voted on all 48 roll call votes. Others missed one or more of the 48 votes. Each record is based on the number of roll calls on which a senator voted and does not count the roll calls for which he or she was ab-

Current law only allows individual consumers to sign up for the list.

> Under the bill, all current laws that now apply to individuals would also apply to businesses including allowing a business on the list to sue a company for up to $5,000 if the company violates the law and calls the business more than once a year; preventing companies from blocking their number from appearing on any business' Caller ID box; prohibiting companies from using recorded message devices to make these calls; and restricting these calls to between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m.

> Supporters say this long overdue bill would finally allow businesses to put a stop to these annoying invasions. They argued the system has worked well for consumers and will be a success for businesses.

> TAX BREAK FOR BUSINESSES NEGATIVELY IMPACTED (H 3352) – On September 27, 2017, the House approved and sent to the Senate legislation that would allow local cities and towns to reduce by up to 50 percent the property tax on any business that can prove that it was negatively affected by a public works or municipal utility company project. The Senate never acted on the measure and it is still stuck in the Senate Committee on Ways and Means.

> Supporters say currently cities and towns can provide a tax break for new or expanding businesses but can offer no relief to a business that is losing customers and money because of things like a multi-year bridge project nearby.

RIGHT TO CHARGE (H 4069) - The House and Senate have approved a bill that would prohibit a condo association from unreasonably restricting an owner from installing an electric vehicle charging station in a deeded parking space or any area where the person has exclusive use.

Supporters said the bill would reduce greenhouse gas emissions and pollution. They noted the measure includes safeguards which allow associations to impose reasonable restrictions, such as installation requirements and safety standards, or to institute an application process.

"Boston residents, more than ever, want to contribute toward reducing carbon emissions and transitioning our city toward environmentally-friendly transportation," said the bill's sponsor Rep. Adrian Madaro (D-East Boston). "I'm proud to have sponsored H 4069, which guarantees the Right to Charge and expands access to electric vehicle charging infrastructure across the city."

QUOTABLE QUOTES

"We're not lagging behind, but we really have nothing to brag about. In fact, our great problem is that we are too self-congratulatory around the single issue of energy efficiency. Doing well in terms of one method doesn't bring us where we need to be. The conversation here [in California] is all about addressing emissions from the transportation sector, where Massachusetts' current role is an embarrassment." — Sen. Mike Barrett (D-Lexington), in an interview with the State House News Service, from the Global Climate Action Summit in California.

"So far the members seem to be very energetic in their support." — House Speaker Bob DeLeo on how his fellow representatives feel about his plans to run for speaker for the upcoming 2019-2020 session. DeLeo, who began his run as speaker in January 2009, is already the longest continuously-serving House speaker in state history.

"Since Congress has refused to act on the security aspects of immigration reform — and thus done nothing to stop the flow of drugs into our neighborhoods, to stop children from being exploited by sex and human traffickers, nor to stop transnational gangs from terrorizing our schools and communities — America's Sheriffs have decided to come together and take the safety of our citizens into our own hands. We will not sit by while our neighborhoods get more dangerous and the people we've sworn to protect face greater risk." — Bristol County Sheriff Tom Hodgson and a group of 43 sheriffs from 35 states announcing their new crowdfunding website - www.SheriffsWall.org - to raise money for the federal government funding and construction of a wall along the U. S. southern border.

"Hate-filled rhetoric says this law will make our women and girls less safe. Since these protections were passed in 2016, there has been zero increase of public safety incidents in restrooms in our state." — Boston City Councilor Ayanna Pressley on the city council's passage of resolutions urging voters to vote yes on Question 3 on the November ballot asking voters if they want to retain the 2016 transgender anti-discrimination law.

No Senate session

"[The law is a] coercive and punitive measure which imposes sanctions on citizens who refuse to participate in the lie that persons can, through some subjective process, change their gender ... The Boston City Council has demonstrated, once again, that it prefers pandering to policy making." — Catholic Action League Executive Director C. J. Doyle on passage of the resolutions.

HOW LONG WAS LAST WEEK'S SESSION?

Beacon Hill Roll Call tracks the length of time that the House and Senate were in session each week. Many legislators say that legislative sessions are only one aspect of the Legislature's job and that a lot of important work is done outside of the House and Senate chambers. They note that their jobs also involve committee work, research, constituent work and other matters that are important to their districts. Critics say that the Legislature does not meet regularly or long enough to debate and vote in public view on the thousands of pieces of legislation that have been filed. They note that the infrequency and brief length of sessions are misguided and lead to irresponsible late-night sessions and a mad rush to act on dozens of bills in the days immediately preceding the end of an annual session

During the week of September 17-21, the House met for a total of one hour and 11 minutes while the Senate met for a total of one hour and 17 minutes.

Voter registration deadline is October 17

Eligible voters have until October 17 (by 8 p.m. if registering in person at City Hall or by 11:59 p.m. if registering online) to register to vote in the upcoming November 6 election. October 17 is also the deadline for voters to update their address or change party affiliation. Residents may register to vote either online, in person, or by mail:

- Register online at www.registertovotema.com.
- Register in person by visiting the Elections Department at Somerville City Hall at 93 Highland Ave.
- Register by mail by either calling the Elections Department at 617-625-6600 x4200 to have a voter registration form mailed to you, or by visiting www.somervillema.gov/elections to print a registration form to mail in.

Please note that online applications require a valid ID issued by the Massachusetts Registry of Motor Vehicles (RMV), as well as a signature on file with the RMV. In most cases persons with I.D.'s will have signatures on file, but just in case yours is not, don't wait until the last minute to register online.

This year, voters will decide three ballot questions and a number of races, including those for the offices of Governor, Senator in Congress, Representative in Congress, Senator and Representative in the State Legislature, MA Attorney General, Middlesex District Attorney, and more.

The three ballot questions to be decided are 1) whether to limit how many patients may be assigned to each registered nurse in Massachusetts hospitals and certain other health care facilities, 2) whether to create a citizens commission to consider and recommend potential amendments to the U.S. Constitution to establish that corporations do not have the same Constitutional rights as human beings and that campaign contributions and expenditures may be regulated, and 3) and whether to add gender identity to the list of prohibited grounds for discrimination in places of public accommodation, resort, or amusement.

Sample ballots will be online soon and more elections information is available at www.somervillema.gov/elections.

Installation of Officers at Somerville Masonic Lodge

By Donald Norton

The local Masonic lodge here in Somerville, King Solomon's Lodge A.F. & A.M., had their yearly installation this past Saturday evening on September 22. The installation was held at the lodge hall located at 125 Highland Avenue (rear) here in Somerville.

King Solomon's Lodge was chartered on September 5, 1783, just two days after the peace treaty between the U.K. and Colonies.

King Solomon's Lodge formed in Charlestown and met for many years at the Warren Tavern, then moved to Thompson Square, and eventually to Somerville at the Masonic apartments that were built for them on the corner of Pearl and Marshall in Gilman Square.

King Solomon's Lodge was the original owner and builder of the Bunker Hill Monument in 1794, built and dedicated in memory of Maj. Gen. Joseph Warren and his associates. It is one of the state's and North America's oldest Masonic Lodges in Massachusetts.

The lodge has over 200 members locally and owns the property at 125 Highland Ave. They meet every third Thursday of the month and all Masons are welcome.

For more information about Masonry and the lodge itself, there will be a statewide Masonic Open House on Saturday, October 20, and the public is invited to come and take a tour of the facility and ask any questions. The website for the lodge will soon be up and running as well at www.kingsolomonslodge.com.

Chicken Caesar Salad

One of the best things about this salad is that everything can be made in advance and assembled right before you're ready to serve it. Whenever I have leftover bread, I also like to make croutons so I have them on hand pretty much most of the time. See the recipe below for the salad and a link for the crouton recipe.

Baby Kale (5oz package) Grilled Boneless Skinless Chicken Breasts, sliced (1 1/2-2, 6oz each serving per person)

Croutons 1 Cup, here's my recipe, https://www.thesomervilletimes.com/archives/73172

Caesar Dressing

- 1 Cup Mayonnaise
- 2 Garlic Cloves, pressed or finely minced to a paste consistency
- 1 Teaspoon Worcestershire
- 1 Teaspoon Dijon Mustard

2 Tablespoons Lemon Juice 5 Drops Fish Sauce 1/4 Cup Grated Parmesan Cheese, plus extra to add to the salad 1/4 Teaspoon Kosher Salt 1/2 Teaspoon Freshly Grated Black Pepper

In a small bowl, add all the ingredients listed above and blend well. Store it in the refrigerator in an airtight container for up to a week. To assemble, place 1/3 cup of the Caesar dressing into a large bowl, then add the package of baby kale and the croutons to the bowl and toss it well until everything is lightly coated with the dressing. You can always add more dressing to your liking and serve extra on the side. Divide the mixture between three bowls or plates. Add the sliced grilled chicken and top off with either grated or shaved Parmesan cheese. Serving size for 3.

Fall is a wonderful season here in Massachusetts, when thoughts typically turn to football, apple picking, and enjoying the cooler weather. But it's also a good time to be aware of fall risks and how they can be reduced.

Falls are not a normal part of aging, but they are the leading cause of fatal and non-fatal injuries for older Americans. In fact, falls result in more than 2.8 million injuries treated in emergency departments annually, according to the National Council on Aging (NCOA). Worse, the chances of suffering a second fall double after the first one.

The good news is that many falls are preventable, and organizations like NCOA and Adult Family Care are promoting measures that can help, leading up to Falls Prevention Awareness Day in September.

The Centers for the Disease Control and Prevention advises that most falls are caused by a combination of following risk factors:

- Lower body weakness
- Vitamin D deficiency
- Difficulties with walking and
- Use of medicines
- Vision problems

Changing the way we look at recycling to help us generate less waste

By Joseph A. Curtatone

Our country generates staggering amounts of waste. In fact, the average American produces more than 4 pounds of trash every day, which means that, collectively, we are creating 700,000 tons of garbage not every year or every month, but every single day. Sure, part of that waste gets recycled, but recycling is no longer enough.

Like many others, I've long been under the impression that I was doing enough by recycling cans, plastic, and paper – dragging my full recycling cart to the curb once a week. And while recycling is better than throwing things in the trash, it's becoming increasingly clear that we can all do more. At the end of the day, recycling is still waste. So, to get to the root of the problem, we need to reduce the amount of waste we create in the first place.

Like many other municipalities, Somerville has long approached waste from a disposal perspective. Our focus has been on how we pick up waste, recycle what we can, and then move it to the right place. But now with the very real threat of climate change along with changing market conditions in China, which has traditionally imported our recyclables, we are forced to look more closely at both the environmental and economic sustainability of our waste management plan.

This narrowed focus has made us recognize that there is an important role for communities like ours to play farther upstream. Now we must ask ourselves not only how we get rid of the waste we do create, but how do we seriously limit generating waste. We've long done well with the "recycle" part of "Reduce, Reuse, Recycle." But now it's time to focus more on the other two R's: reducing and reusing.

The good news is our residents are avid recyclers. As a percentage of Somerville's total waste picked up curbside, recycling continues to increase in our community. Currently, 30.1 % of Somerville's waste is recycled. But with our total recycling currently at 7,500 tons per year, there's still room to reduce and reuse even more. There are some immediate steps we can all take to reduce the amount of waste we put out on the curb every week, and it starts with what we're buying in stores.

We can reduce the amount of waste we create by being more strategic with our purchases. There are plenty of helpful websites like www.greeneducationfoundation.org with good tips. They include advice like stop using plastic straws if you are able, buy food and drinks in bulk rather than single-serve containers and bottles, use a re-usable shopping bag, don't use plastic tableware at home and don't let it be packed into your take-out bag, pack your lunch in reusable containers or bags, and avoid frozen meals that have a lot of packaging.

The EPA suggests using reusable sponges, mops, and cloths rather than disposable paper towels. They also advise donating or selling usable items you no longer need. Many waste reduction tips will also save you money, such as the EPA's advice to "clean and properly store tools, toys and outdoor furniture to protect them from damage and keep them out of landfills." So many suggestions are truly simple such as the tip in our own Sustainability Guide to carry your own water bottle or reusable coffee mug to avoid all those wasted bottles, cups, and lids. And then there are the looming questions such as what to do about all the packaging that comes from online shopping.

These things might seem small, but when applied by the 324 million of us across the country they can add up and make a big impact. Likewise, in addition to what individuals can do, cities and towns also have to be right there leading the way. We too need to reduce and reuse more while also starting the broader conversation on how to address this on a national scale. And when it comes to climate change, waste disposal only makes a small difference—but we can make a big difference when we consume fewer products that take a lot of energy to produce and ship.

Just like with any big shift, education and culture change is paramount. But just as we worked hard together when we switched to single-stream recycling about seven years ago, we can work hard to tackle waste reduction long before the plastic, aluminum, or paper ever hits the blue bin.

BOA bullies block members' reappointment

By Jack Connolly

Battle lines between the mayor and his administration are being drawn as Somerville aldermen failed to reappoint longtime accomplished native Somervillians Nancy Busnach and Joe Favaloro to the Somerville Redevelopment Authority and the Planning Board at its latest BOA meeting on September 13.

It's going to be real difficult for the mayor and his administration to recruit and fill many of the positions on the various boards and commissions charged with handling the city's business, especially in light of the recent non-appointment and public flogging by Board of Aldermen (soon to become a city Council?) of two longtime Somervillians, Nancy Busnach, 19 year veteran and Chairperson of the Somerville Redevelopment Authority, and Joe Favaloro, Former School Committeeman, alderman, and longtime member of the Somerville Planning Board. I took at the BOA committee of Confirmation and Appointments meeting on August 28 at City Hall, and after 30 years of public service to the city, I've never seen such an unprofessional, discourteous, and condescending meeting where two longtime prominent members of the community were virtually harangued and chastised by members of the Board of Aldermen for get this: DOING THEIR JOBS!

Letter to the Editor: Question 3

Dear Editor,

I'm writing to urge Somerville voters to vote Yes on 3, to keep in place Massachusetts' public accommodations law. This law is about treating our transgender neighbors and community members fairly.

Many of us have a part of our identity that make others look at us differently – our religion, politics, sexuality, or culture.

Most people know how it feels to be bullied or excluded, and transgender people want privacy and dignity just like everyone else. Just as it's wrong to exclude people based on what they believe, it's wrong to discriminate against transgender people for who they are.

The current law protects trans people against discrimination in public spaces. That means the transgender child bullied severely in a suburban public school can hold school administration accountable for its inaction. It means the transgender woman rejected from the hospital when she checked herself in for feeling suicidal cannot legally be refused treatment again. These are true stories, and we should commend our legislature and governor for acting to fight these injustices.

This law doesn't weaken regulations against crime – it gives transgender people legal protections against discrimination based on their identity. Everyone, including transgender people, wants to be safe, and by working together we can fight behavior that is predatory towards trans people, children, women and girls. The Massachusetts Chiefs of Police Association endorses Yes on 3, because they know our laws make everyone safer.

Please vote Yes on 3 in November to uphold fairness, justice, and dignity for our fellow community members who are transgender.

Sincerely, Celine Lessard Somerville

Our View Of The Times

On certain very rare occasions, someone does something so vile and beyond the norm of civilized behavior that it virtually defies belief. When it happens in our own back yard the sense of outrage is multiplied by orders of magnitude.

The recent disgusting defilement of American flags and the grave sites of honored heroes at the Somerville Veterans Memorial Cemetery was one such shocking moment that aroused anger and heartache throughout the community.

One is left to but wonder how any individual could become so warped and darkened by whatever thought processes led them to commit such an act, and to hold orderly society in such low regard.

Yes, these are troubled times in many ways. Political and social tensions have amplified the strains between so many of us. And yet, this incident smacks of something deeper and darker. That perhaps many among us – especially the younger set – may be slipping into a cynical and viciously anti-social state of mind.

While it's true that the individual who committed this act may be an extreme exception, let us also be mindful in seeing to it that our young ones do not slip into that darkness themselves. We must continuously teach them respect for each other and society as a whole.

Did you hear about the street utility pole that fell over this past Sunday? We heard that exact pole was reported to utility company officials two years ago. They said then that it was fine and nothing was going to happen. Well, now it fell over as predicted. Area residents lost electrical power and Belmont St. was blocked off. How many other utility poles are leaning over and will fall before the electric company fixes them?

Happy birthday this week to several locals: Happy birthday to one of Somerville's nicest and friendliest ladies, Joan O'Meara. What a nice lady. We wish her a special birthday to celebrate all week long. Happy birthday to the now retired SHC director who is always around the city, Mark Alston-Follansbee. A nice guy and we wish him the very best. Happy birthday to another lifelong resident, great guy Wayne Snow. We wish him the very best as well. Happy birthday to Richard Mangan. We wish him a very happy birthday as well. Happy birthday to Frank Ricardo, an old friend and a good guy. This week, our former publisher and friend Bob Publicover would have been celebrating. We hope he's doing that up in heaven. Again, Happy birthday to all the other locals and former locals who are celebrating this week. We wish every one of them a very happy birthday.

Someone sent us some documents about 40 pages or so - concerning the Winter Hill Yacht Club, their lease and membership list. We're going over it and will present an update over the next few weeks. But again, we think it's a shame all that beautiful land and docks, and most especially the club house, is being used by those that don't even live here in the city. A vast majority - we hear 80% or more - live outside of the city. It's state owned land (belongs to the people) and they pay rent, but are they current? What is the amount they pay to the state? What benefit does Somerville get from it now? We know that some former criminals are members there, actually we heard someone say the other day "if your indicted your invited." Go by and check it out.

Are you retired and looking for part time work, and you're experienced in sales? Give us a call here at The Somerville Times at 617-666-4010. We are looking for advertising telemarketers.

Treasure Hunting with Bob

BY BOB ADAMS

Take it all

One time, out yard sailing, I went to an advertised sale in Arlington. It was almost 11:00 a.m. when I arrived – late – for a yard sale.

There were kids running around and a couple of mothers trying to watch them while running the sale. They pointed to the garage and on some plywood was a ton of vintage jewelry. I'd hit the mother lode (ha).

I grabbed all the gold and silver I could carry in one hand and went to the two women. How much? $20 they said. With one hand, I grabbed a twenty, paid them and ran to my vehicle.

When I got my wind back, I drove off. Thinking back, I should have grabbed everything, tossed it in a box and gone through it carefully back at my house. Nope. What a dummy. I sold what I bought for something like $2500. Good day at work, but it still kills me that I didn't buy it all.

Another time, I was in a junk shop in Boston. I saw a basket of tobacco tins and asked how much. $1 each she said. Sure, I took them all and paid her $10 or so. She asked if I wanted any more. Yeah, what ya got? She had three big black trash bags full of tobacco tins! Take the whole lot for $25, she said. Sure! I sold those things over the years for like $5 each. I think I still have a few in my basement. I made hundreds of dollars off of that lot.

A few weeks ago, I was at a big second-hand store. They came out with a cart full of vintage Barbie dolls, clothes, carrying cases and other stuff. I grabbed it all and the staff teased me about buying girly dolls. It cost me $40 for everything. I put it at auction and they separated it out into five lots. It did $942. Some bidding frenzy right at the end. I'll take it, take it all.

Committee members led by Ward 5 Alderman Mark Niedergang (who left the meeting early to attend a "very important" ward meeting) took almost a full hour of a very busy agenda to criticize and belittle Busnach and her conduct as Chair of the Somerville Redevelopment Authority, singling out individual meetings and topics near and dear to their political concerns.

Despite being blindsided by these vicious attacks on her character and conduct, Ms. Busnach showed the utmost proalleged imperfections of her professional pursuits.

At-Large Alderman Bill White was the only BOA member with the courage to speak in favor of the Busnach reappointment, citing her long and accomplished career and service to the city.

Skewering Ms. Busnach was just a warm up, as BOA members went full bore after Planning Board Member Joe Favaloro, with members echoing absent Ward 5 BOA member Niedergang's written condemnation of the Planning Board's process regarding the Board's decision to waive the 20% requirement for the developer (Federal Realty Investment Corp) and the subsequent approval of a units in Assembly Sq.

Favaloro pulled no punches in his own defense of the Planning Board process.

Favaloro has served in various positions under all Somerville mayors going back to Mayor Gene Brune, holding positions as a School Committee member, Alderman At-Large, and currently as a member of the Planning Board. Favaloro portrayed himself as a "titan of transparency," as he valiantly and vehemently countered the verbal fusillade of dissatisfaction heaped on him by BOA members, all but for Alderman At-Large Bill White, who was gracious in praise of Favaloro's

Both Busnach and Favaloro could have the last laugh, though both were not reappointed to their positions, since they can remain serving the city as holdover members in their respective positions until such time as they are replaced by the mayor.

Stay tuned: Mayor Joe as the Chief Executive of the city should work hard to convince both Busnach and Favaloro to stick around, since people with education, experience, business know-how, and long-term local knowledge are few and far between: It should be a priority for him and the city administration.

Last time I checked, his oath of office requires him to do Busnach and Favaloro in their Somerville.

The Federal Assault on Local Media

The FCC is trying to threaten the future of community media and this is how you can help:

The Federal Communications Commission is continuing its assault on local communities and local media. They have announced two agenda items for its September 26th meeting that will cripple city and county budgets and perhaps defund franchise fees – this is how SMC and thousands of others alike are funded.

The impact? Cities and counties will lose billions (with a B) in potential revenue as more and more telecommunications go wireless. The future will be foreclosed for communities that want to support local media and digital inclusion with those fees (or even just pave their roads!). Once the order is issued, the cable industry will want relief from franchise fees as well. This will increase the political pressure to change the Cable Act in Congress (Source: The Alliance for Community Media).

Go to https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=om7Bm9Nl0GI to watch a video produced at Somerville Media Center that addresses the matter.

More information and how you can help is found online here: http://www.somervillemedia.org/federaassaultonlocalmedia/

Contact your local, state and Federal lawmakers. Ask them to oppose the FCC's "Small Cell Order" and "In Kind Offset Rule."

Here at the Lyrical we can write about anything, even the death of a sandwich. James Lewis is a junior at Endicott College in Beverly, Massachusetts. He is studying nursing and is on the football team.

Sandwich Eulogy

In remembrance, Mr. Sandwich

On September 10, 2018, Mr. Sandwich was brutally murdered in broad daylight in the Callahan Dining Center. Sodexo dining staff recovered the remains of his body being sent down the conveyor belt. Only his crust was able to be salvaged. Witnesses at the scene report he was first doused in oil and then had his body fried in a panini maker. He was then extracted from the machine, with severe burn marks lining his body. Video footage from public safety showed a human being at about 5'11" with brown hair and blue eyes tearing his body to shreds with his vicious bites. His meaty body was finished beside a bowl of potato chips. The suspect is still at large. Mr. Sandwich was only twenty four. He enjoyed spending his days thinking about what it would be like to be brought to a picnic. He is lived on by his wife, Mrs. Simple Serving Chicken, and their two kids, Omelet and Chicken Patty. Services will be held at the salad bar today at 3:00 in the afternoon. In lieu of flowers, condiments can be sent to 12 Deli Lane.

Somerville Poet Laureate:

Call for 2019 applicants

We are coming to the end of the tenure of Gloria Mindock, Somerville's second Poet Laureate. She has done a great job. The Poet Laureate Committee is looking for new candidates for the position. Please read below:

Somerville Poet Laureate Application and Overview

Statement of Purpose

The City of Somerville announces the creation of a Poet Laureate for Somerville. The City views the position as a means to further enhance the profile of poets and poetry in the city and beyond. The Poet Laureate will be a person of vision with the ability to enact his/ her vision.
